

03 · Reading a candlestick chart

FXC Free · Class notes (view only)

Topics in this lesson

- Anatomy of a candle
- Bullish vs bearish
- Timeframes

Illustrative chart — for education only. Not financial advice.

Explanation

Each candlestick shows four prices for a period: the open, the high, the low and the close. The body is the distance between open and close; the thin wicks show the extremes.

A candle that closes higher than it opened is usually shown green (bullish); one that closes lower is red (bearish). Reading sequences of candles reveals momentum and hesitation.

The same market looks different on a 5-minute chart versus a daily chart. Choosing the right timeframe for your style is one of the first skills we build together.